About The Cover

Payton Jordan of Los Altos, Calif., won his first track meet in 1931. This lifelong athlete later became coach of track at Stanford University and was head coach of the 1968 Olympic track-and-field team. He retired in 1979 and competed in masters meets for athletes 40 and over, setting a series of world records sprints. What keeps Jordan, who turned 77 yesterday, "on track"? Besides Marge, his wife of 54 years, and his family, he says: "My philosophy is to find joy in whatever you do—whether it's music, art or running. Sport is only one of the many things that bring zest and happiness to life. That's why I do it. When are we too old to do anything that makes us happy?"

For the first time in 25 races, Hurry-up Harold Davis, best of all the nation's sprinters, was beaten. It happened at Berkeley, as Ensign Payton Jordan of St. Mary's Pre-flight school, formerly of U.S.C. where he was National Champion, nipped Davis by one inch after the two had run neck and neck the entire 100 yards.
