A Time to Remember

by Al Sheahan

The First World Masters Track & Field Championships in Toronto, Canada, was a memorable experience for all who attended. "I wouldn't have missed it for anything in the world," was a frequent comment. "I made friends with people from all over the globe," was another. "I'm going to relax for a couple of weeks, then start pointing for Sweden in 1977," said another, or "I'm going to Sweden in 1977 even if I'm not in shape to run, just to be a part of this!"

Over 1400 veteran athletes from 27 nations competed in the 5-day "Masters Olympics" at Toronto's Ontario Stadium. The 515-member American contingent was the largest, followed by Sweden, Canada, Great Britain, and Australia, who all sent sizable teams. Other nations represented were Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Guatemala, Holland, Northern Ireland, Republic of Ireland, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, Rhodesia, Scotland, Singapore, South Africa, Venezuela, Yugoslavia, and Wales.

Prior to the Toronto meet, 515 athletes from 13 nations competed in the 3-day U.S. Masters Championships in White Plains, New York.

The First World Games got off to a rocky start, and, in fact, came close to being aborted by the interjection of international politics. It was while the U.S. Masters International Track Team was competing in White Plains that Dave Pain, Captain of USMUTT and one of the key organizers of the Toronto games, got word from Don Parfquharson, President of the 1975 World Masters Championships, that the Canadian Government in an 11-hour decision was insisting that the South African and Rhodesian athletes be banned from competing in the meet.

The government had provided $24,000 in financial aid to the meet organizers and had promised $8,000 more to pay the officials. They demanded the barring of the African athletes or their money back. The Canadian meet organizers had long ago invited the Africans and had accepted their entries, but were faced with bankruptcy if the government withdrew its $32,000. So they wired the Africans to stay home, but the Africans had already left and were in New York, competing in White Plains. Nevertheless, the meet directors voted to ban the Africans from the competition.

When Dave Pain and others in White Plains learned of this on Saturday, three days before the start of competition, they were furious. At a Saturday night meeting of the U.S. Masters, it was unanimously voted to urge the Canadian meet organizers to reconsider, and permit the Africans to compete.

In a telephone interview which made the front page of the Toronto Star, Pain said: "Many of the athletes on my team are ready to pull out if the South Africans are not allowed to take part. Representatives of the other teams that I have spoken to about the Canadian ban have indicated they will follow suit. The Canadian government has no right to do this." Pain said, the 15 South Africans had entered as individuals, not as a sponsored team, each paying their own $2000 air fare and expenses.

"They've come all this way only to be unceremoniously kicked out by Canada," said Pain. "It's like inviting friends to dinner and slamming the door in their faces when they arrive."

Over the weekend, Pain determined that the U.S. team could raise the $52,000, if necessary, to prevent the Canadian meet organizers from bankruptcy, if the South Africans competed.

On the arrival of the USMITT in Toronto at noon on Monday, the story was on the front page, and a top item in television and radio newscasts. At an airport interview with the Star, Pain said: "The whole Masters' concept is that of individuals competing among themselves and not representing a country. It is non-political. The government should stay out of it! The South Africans have passports to be in this country; they're not here illegally. The haven't done anything wrong. It just happens they came here to compete in a track and field meet!"

At the same interview, American black athletes Dave Jackson, Don Cheek and Tom Clayton said they were in favor of the Africans competing, but were undecided as to whether they would withdraw from the meet if the ban was upheld.

At a Monday luncheon meeting with Farquharson, Meet Vice-President Elwyn Davies and attorney Don Champagne, Pain urged them to reconsider their decision and admit the South Africans. He promised to raise the $8,000 to pay the officials, and to raise the $24,000 if the government demanded the money back. Everyone agreed, however, that the government was on shaky legal ground if it wanted its money back, since it had stipulated no conditions originally, and the money had already been spent.

The $8,000 was another matter, since it was to pay the officials' travel expenses, who were enroute to Toronto from throughout Canada at that moment. Farquharson pointed out that if the organizers were to defy the government, the officials might refuse to participate in the meet even if the $8,000 were available to pay them. Since most of the officials hoped to referee at the 1976 Montreal Olympics, Farquharson felt they might still walk if the ban risked blacklisting by the Canadian government. Pain said that, should that happen, USMITT would provide officials from among its members, that many were qualified to run events, and others would gladly volunteer; that the meet would obviously not run as smoothly, but that it would go on.

Clearly, the Canadian meet organizers were in a tough spot. They wanted to be fair to the South Africans whom they had invited and whose entries they had accepted, and who were now in Toronto ready to compete. They were concerned with the threat of the withdrawal of many athletes if the South Africans were barred. And they considered possible reprisals by the Canadian government if the South Africans were allowed to compete.

They were grateful to Pain and USMITT for publicizing the situation in the media, thus getting public opinion behind the South Africans.

Later that afternoon and evening, Pain held interviews with the Toronto Sun and appeared on the nationwide Canadian National Broadcasting television network, saying that while we may not agree with a nation's internal social structure, politics has no place in athletics, and that even if it did, we could probably help to change the world for the better by inter-communication with people with whom we disagree, rather than by boycotts and the shutting off of ideas and verbal exchange.

At this point, it was clear that, regardless of the outcome of the Canadian decision, the Masters Track and Field Program had achieved more publicity than at any other time in its history. The story had carried to other countries. Pain was interviewed by the New York Times and Associated Press, and carried the story nationwide to thousands of its U.S. affiliates. Millions of people who had never heard of Masters Track & Field before, were now aware of the program.

On Monday night, the Canadian meet organizers voted 6-5 to rescind their ban and allow the South Africans to compete. "Track Officials Defy Ottawa," headlined the Toronto Sun the next day.

Farquharson said: "Our committee debated for some length of time but at no time did the South African apartheid situation enter the conversation...We felt the government's decision was offered at so late a stage that it was unfair to the competitors."

"We're obviously very please," Pain said. "It saved us a lot of problems and hard feelings. Our position was completely a matter of principle. Next time it could be Canada or the United States in the same position as the South Africans are here. "The decision of the Canadians demonstrates the independence of the Masters," said Pain.

Harry Lampert, one of the South African competitors, said it was "a tremendous sense of relief for the South Africans. We have great admiration for the courage of the Canadians to make their decision."

Immediately after the vote was announced, the five-member Yugoslavian team said it was pulling out in protest because it didn't want South Africans to compete.

Meanwhile, Ed Phillips had been rounding up potential officials from among USMITT members in the event they were needed. Happily they were not, as the whole issue died down very quickly and the meet went on as scheduled. The officials, as it turned out, were superb and contributed enormously to the success of the meet.

Marc Lalonde, the Canadian official who demanded the ban was on vacation and "could not be reached for comment." A spokesman said: "There's not too much we can do."

The persistence and determination to fight for principle in the face of overwhelming odds by Dave Pain was clearly the difference in persuading the Canadian officials to rescind their ban by one vote. It would have been so easy to roll over, take the $52,000, tell the South Africans "Sorry" and go on with an untroubled meet.

But Masters athletes are not the kind that turn tail and sacrifice principle just to run in a track meet.

In an editorial, the Toronto Sun said: "Why in God's name deliberately import politics into sport? Bravo for those athletes who threatened to boycott the meet unless all could compete! They understand principle better than politicians. They also gave backbone to the organizers to tell Ottawa to jump in the lake."

The meet began on Tuesday as scheduled with the pentathlon and a 10,000 meter cross-country course, up 45-degree hills and through 50 yards of 2-feet-deep water. It was a real thrill to watch the hundreds of athletes from different countries as they ran by Australia, then Sweden, then Canada, France, USA, Venezuela, Great Britain, Finland......the Olympics could not be more exciting.

Hamburgers and beer were served at a social gathering of athletes and friends following the cross-country, which was highlighted by the victory of the meet, legendary, 90-year-old Duncan MacLean, the "Tartan Flash" from Scotland, entertaining the crowd. MacLean, a former stage understudy to the late Sir Harry Lauder, sang two songs he composed especially for the occasion, "The Four-Minute Mile" and "Push and Go." MacLean says "Every muscle you have is there for a purpose and if you don't use them, they'll die."
A hurried peek at Pikes

Two days before taking part in the most strenuous marathon race in the world, Joss Naylor rode the cogwheel train to the top of Pikes Peak. He sat just beneath the 14,110-foot summit and looked down at the barren slopes of shale, or scree, as it is known in the North of England, and at the narrow trail that zigzags through dust-streaked rocks and around precariously balanced boulders. The trail came into view more than a thousand feet below, where a crested cliff shields a 1,300-foot drop called The Cirque, carved by a glacier in the Ice Age. Beyond, Naylor could see the verdant lower ridges covered with blue spruce, and still farther down, Colorado Springs as an expansive blot by dots in the hazy distance, the beginning of the plains of Kansas. Clouds brushed the wooded hills like mammoth feather dusters, occasionally revealing two or three lakes. And Naylor said, “For four years I have been wanting to come here to see for myself how beautiful Colorado really is.”

Naylor had arrived earlier in the week in Manitou Springs, a tourist town at the foot of Mount Manitou, a 9,445-foot neighbor of the grand peak. While his exploits as a fell, or mountain, runner (SI, July 28) had taken him above 4,000 feet in Scotland and above 9,000 in Switzerland, he had never experienced the discomfort that had now overcome him while running above 12,000 feet in Colorado. In training for the Pikes Peak Marathon the 39-year-old sheep farmer from the English Lake District had pushed himself up the 13-mile trail three times: it took him three hours on Tuesday, when he was forced to walk the last 2,000 feet, two hours and 40 minutes on Wednesday, running all the way; and two hours, 15 minutes on Thursday when he stepped at 13,000 feet. “I could feel the blood thump in the back of my head,” he was saying now. “I just couldn’t get enough oxygen in my lungs. You are not going at your maximum, fast-like. I know I don’t have a chance against the local chaps. I’ll be about 40 minutes slower than at a lower level. If I come within 30 minutes of the lucky lad who wins, I’m happy.”

Naylor pointed to a nose-dive slope of scree that looked as if it would turn into a deadly avalanche at the slightest touch. “I could run down that and pick up quite a few chaps,” he said. Naylor held up a small rock. “It’s for a friend back home. Eric Roberts. He raised the money for me trip, about £600, half of it from IBM United Kingdom Limited. He’s a fell runner, too, and he said to me, ‘I want you to do me a favor, lad. Fetch me a bit of rock from back of the summit of Pikes Peak.’

“I don’t mind losing if I can finish respectfully. I want to make fell running an international sport. There are so many good athletes that have dedicated themselves to running hills. They should be able to compete more.”

Naylor was already leading a special glamorous to the 20-year-old marathon. Runners surged up to join in the streets of Manitou Springs, eager to shake hands. “Are you the Englishman?” they asked, and the inevitable question was put to him by a hefty lady who inquired, proceeding the next morning to the peak for a splendid sunrise.

A race on the trail was held in 1936, but it was not until August 1956 that the first 6-mile marathon (385 yards short of the standard distance) took place, from the cogwheel-train depot at 6,571 feet to the top and back down. Ten nonskiers had challenged four smokers, and only four, all nonskiers, finished. Since then the marathon has been an annual affair organized by Rudy Fahl, who has been up the trail 460 times, including 13 races, but who is, at 77, no longer a competitor.

The race starts with a steep three-mile climb, winding through scrub oak up Mount Manitous before the runners can stop for a drink from French Creek. Then there are four miles of flat terrain marked by aspen and blue spruce, allowing for a fast pace. After Barr Camp, the halfway point which offers the first view of Pikes Peak, the trail climbs rapidly again. Two miles of switchbacks lead to the Forest Service’s A-frame shelter. Just above it, the runners pass through the Dismal Forest, a cemetery of gray twisted tree trunks left from a fire half a century ago. At 12,000 feet, the timberline falls behind and the rock-strewn wasteland opens up with patches of moss and lichens and pillows of snow. (This year it snowed heavily 10 days before the race.) Just above the Dismal Forest a bronze plaque serves as a reminder that Mrs. G. Erskine B. Roberts made her 14th ascent at the age of 88 in 1957 and that she died of exposure on the way down. Further on, The Cirque looms up to the left, and then the trail rises on the last precipice slowly in tight, greuling switchbacks that are rather inappropriately called “the 16 Golden Stairs.”

While most of the runners stayed in rustic motels such as the Van Horne Cottages, which offered a complimentary spaghetti dinner on the eve of the race, Naylor found tree adobe accommodations in a large house up the hill, a rehabilitation center called the Stillpoint Foundation, run by Gia-Fu Feng, a bachelor, barefooted Chinese with a graying Constanza beard. It was Gia-Fu Feng’s calling to teach Taosinka, and every morning Naylor found him and a dozen students meditating on the living-room floor. One dry, hot day he asked them to perform a rain dance, and the Taosinka began swaying their arms. The rain came that very night. Naylor learned, however, that Taosinka are strict vegetarians, and after a couple of days on a diet of organically grown vegetables and strange tea, he went down on a diet of high-protein food.

Saturday, though Feng surprised him with a bowl of cooked ground beef which tasted delicious. “I’m also the spiritual trail master of the race,” said Feng, “and I know runners need meat.” He then proceeded to show Naylor a time in one of the books he had written on Taosism. It read: “Accept what is in front of you without wanting the situation to be other than it is.” It seemed appropriate advice before the race.

This year 350 competitors (half of them from Colorado), including 35 women, had arrived for the marathon. They formed a mixed group of serious runners, joggers and hikers. Anybody reaching the top after six hours would not be officially timed. Rick Trujillo, a 27-year-old geologist from Ouray, Colo., was the favorite, since he works above 9,000 feet at the Camp Bird Mine and had won the two previous races, setting the round-trip record of 3:36:40. Chuck Freeland, a 24-year-old Californian, hoped to better his record to the top of 3:07:38. Then there was Walt Stack, a 67-year-old hod carrier from San Francisco called the Iron Man because he won his age group four times. The oldest starter was 83-year-old Lady Brenda Ueland from Minneapolis, who had been knighted by King Hakon II of Norway.

Race day was bright and sunny, and after the runners had disappeared into the woods at 7:30 a.m. the spectators drove up the highway to the summit. Sonja and Roland Ljungqvist, a Swedish couple who had been Naylor’s hosts during his first few days of acclimatization in Boulder, Colo., awaited him with a bottle of lime-flavored Acorade, the English equivalent of Gatorade. First to reach the peak was Trujillo, lifting his knees easily.
His ascent time of 2:01:47 broke Sneed’s record by almost six minutes, and he turned immediately to start down. When Naylor finally came into view he was in 18th place. He was jogging slowly with a stagger, his body bent over like that of a man twice his age, his hands almost touching the path, and the salt lost in perspiration had formed a white crust around his mouth. He had taken him two hours, 41 minutes and five seconds to reach the top, and he sat down, his eyes lifeless, reaching for his Acolade. He drank it very slowly. Suddenly he jumped to his feet, a fresh spark in his eyes, and bounded down the trail as ungraciously and as fast—as a giraffe.

It was 87° in Manitou Springs by the time Trujillo reached the finish in 3:11:05, breaking his record for the round trip, his left shoulder and knee skinned from a fall at Barr Camp. “Every year I forget how painful this run is,” he said. “I feel sorry for Naylor. I ran above 10,000 feet all the time. He is at such a disadvantage and had much pressure on him.” To everyone’s surprise Naylor finished sixth, 36 minutes and 17 seconds behind Trujillo, who hurried to shake Naylor’s hand. “I know how you feel,” he said.

“Aye, I’m all done,” said Naylor. “Right from the start, my legs felt heavy. I was about 10th at Barr Camp, but I got into a nice steady rhythm and caught a few guys going up and a few more coming down.” He pulled off a bloody sock. “I know I had to suffer to do well. All the way down, the blood in my head was going thump, thump and I kept looking round whether anybody was catching me but there was nobody behind.”

Later, in a telephone interview with BBC London, he said cheerily. “I was sixth, pretty good for an old man, and could you ring the wife and tell her I had a good run and I would be home Tuesday night nine o’clock!” Then he joined Stack’s post-race party, lifting many cases of Coors and swapping jokes with the Iron Man like a local chap. In the middle of the night, when his legs were rather unsteady going up the hill to Feng’s, he kept wondering whether it was the altitude that affected him or the drinks.

A TIME TO REMEMBER

On Wednesday evening, the games officially opened with a parade of all the athletes under white and red national banners. The Toronto Globe reported that 20 protesters showed up because of the African decision, but no one seemed to notice.

Thursday thru Saturday saw some of the most amazing performances ever achieved by Masters athletes. Abby Thomas, Jack Greenwood, Bill Fitzgerald, Roy Fowler, Jim McDonald, Dick Show, Tom Bright, Ken Carne, Theo Orr, John Gilmour, Jim O’Neil, Ian Hume, Ed McConus, Phil Conley, Dave Jackson, Shirley Davison, Garbusch of Germany, Jack Brown, Gordon Farrell, Eric Austin. It was a thrill just to watch them.

Ed Cokkin won the “most frustrated athlete of the meet” award. The 40-year-old USMITT member from San Diego, Ed ran a sensational 2:01.9 in the 800 and a 4:11.0 in the 1500, yet did not even qualify for the finals in both events. The competition was very tough. But that’s what it’s all about, isn’t it?

On Friday morning, about 150 athletes gathered for a Masters International Committee meeting. It was voted:

1) to defer any decision as to the frequency of the World Championships until 1977, although the general sentiment seemed to favor a meet every two years.
2) to accept the invitation of the city of Gothenburg, Sweden to host the 2nd World Championships in either June or August, 1977.
3) to form an eight-member international committee, including Dave Pain and Bob Pine of the United States, Ian Hume and Don Farquharson of Canada, Mavee Kyle of Northern Ireland, Jack Fitzgerald of Great Britain, Wal Sheppard of Australia, and Olin Wallin of Sweden, to propose policy on an international level and to work with the meet organizers in Sweden to insure a top-caliber meet in 1977.
4) to look into the controversy between “professional” and “amateur” Masters athletes, which has caused some athletes to be barred from Masters competition in some countries with a view to eliminating any rule requiring Masters athletes to be amateurs.

Highlight of the Saturday competition was the 200-meter dash for athletes over 80, featuring Duncan MacLean, Charlie Speedy (88), England, and Fritz Schreiber (81), of Sweden.

The young whippersnapper of the group, Schreiber, was first with MacLean second. Not even perspiring or out of breath minutes after the race, MacLean was ready to go again, “I’ll race him again right now. Maybe I could beat him two out of three,” he said.

After the competition ended on Saturday afternoon, Don Farquharson led the athletes in a ceremonial victory lap around the track.

Over 2000 athletes and their guests attended a banquet Saturday night at the Four Seasons-Sheraton Hotel. Dave Pain was presented with a special medal by Elwyn Davies and the committee for his immense contribution to the success of the meet. Dancing and good fellowship followed dinner.

On Sunday, some competitors toured the Canadian National Exhibition, others went to Niagara Falls, others started to pack, and many just reflected on the memorable six days just past.

On Monday, the USMITT charter took off for Los Angeles. Some carried medals. Some did not. All carried memories they would not soon forget!
Athletes rally to support barred South Africans

Many of the 1,400 athletes from 30 countries arriving in Metro today for a week-long amateur track meet may pull out of the event unless a ban against 13 white South Africans and two Rhodesians, also white, is lifted, according to the founder of the event.

David Pain, captain of a 35-member U.S. team, told The Star last night in an interview by telephone from White Plains, N.Y.: "My team is ready to pull out if the South Africans are not allowed to take part.

"Representatives of the other teams that I have spoken to about the Canadian ban have indicated they will follow suit," he said.

However, at Toronto International Airport today, Pain said the decision to wane would have to be made on an individual basis. There would be no team decision.

Three black members of the U.S. group said they hadn't made up their minds whether to support the South Africans but they said they were against politics being involved in athletics.

The telegram to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau today "deploring an attack on individual rights," the decision of the cabinet to withdraw financial aid for the competition if any South Africans take part. Pain is the founder of the World Masters meet, the first international event for athletes over age 40. It is scheduled to open tomorrow in Etoiboke's Centennial Stadium.

The Toronto official also said he has asked Ottawa to send a "senior man, preferably one who has direct contact with Health Minister Marc Lalonde, to a meeting tonight.

"Part of the trouble is the federal government's delay in answering our query on this matter. I asked May 27 for an answer last week. I asked repeatedly for clarification and they kept saying 'the ministers have left.'"

A spokesman for Lalonde told The Star today that the U.S. athletes meeting is to consider its stand. He has heard second-hand that if the South Africans do compete, the Yugoslavs will not.

Another official said that if the South Africans take part the Yugoslavs won't because their government won't let them compete with athletes from South Africa.

A similar telegram will be sent to Ottawa officials today, he said.

The telegram says that Canadian athletes are "as painter and protest this ill-advised decision," which they feel is an attack on athletics and not a political matter.

The Canadian Track and Field Association decided Tuesday not to let the athletes compete in the amateur World Masters' meet because of a threat by the Canadian government to withhold $30,000 in grants. The meet is for athletes aged 40 and over.

An aide to Health Minister Marc Lalonde was quoted as saying Ottawa "will not support apartheid morally or financially" and will not offer financial aid to any Canadian sports event that invites teams from South Africa.

"A PITANCE"

"For the government, $30,000 is a pitance but to the sponsor it's the difference between making it or breaking it," Pain said.

"They have gone out on a limb and if the Canadian government jerks the rug from under them, they'll go bankrupt." The South Africans, who are competing in a meet for amateur athletes in White Plains, N.Y., say they have not been officially notified of Canada's decision, but that they will come to Toronto next week regardless of their eligibility.

Pain is the founder of the World Masters' meet. He said the organizers have paid their own expenses and are "individuals competing in a non-political meet." He said he would personally decline to compete in the Etoiboke meet in protest if the ban is upheld.

The 13 South African and two Rhodesian athletes considered undesirable by the Canadian government will be allowed to compete in a meet at The World Masters amateur track meet, for athletes over 40, voted 6-5 to rescinding a previous ban on the 15 white athletes from the two white minority-race countries.

The federal government has said it will not pay a $20,000 grant towards the meet's expenses if athletes from pre-apartheid countries participate. But the meet organizers have already received $24,000 of the grant.

Immediately after the vote was announced, the five-member Yugoslavian team told The Star it is pulling out in protest because it doesn't want South Africans to compete. Members of several other national teams said in interviews they are considering dropping out.

The politically troubled meet was to begin at 9 a.m. today in Etoiboke's Centennial Stadium.

Last week, an aide to Health Minister March Lalonde announced that Ottawa "will not support apartheid morally or financially" and will cut off financial aid to any Canadian sports event that invites teams from South Africa.

Don Farquharson, president of the Canadian Masters Association and chairman of the meet organizing committee, announced the decision to allow the South Africans and Rhodesians to compete after a closed meeting.

A spokesman for Lalonde said the government would cut off funds for any Canadian sports event that included teams from South Africa, because Canada "will not support apartheid."

Pain, 33, a lawyer from San Diego, Calif., was further about the ban. "I don't see the Canadian government has any right to do this."

Pain said the 13 Africans had entered as individuals, not as a sponsored team. Each paying his or her own $2,000 air fare and expenses.

'Apartheid' ban on athletes protested

Canada's decision to bar 13 white South African athletes from an international amateur track meet in Etoiboke next week will either spark violence, peace among competitors or force the sponsors into bankruptcy, a United States organizer of the event said yesterday in a telephone interview with The Star.

David Pain, captain of the 350-member U.S. team, said that his team has sent a strongly worded telegram to the U.S. State Department in Washington and the U.S. embassy in Ottawa to protest the exclusion of South African athletes because of the country's apartheid policy.

A similar telegram will be sent to Ottawa officials today, he said.

The 13 South African and two Rhodesian athletes considered undesirable by the Canadian government will be allowed to compete in an international track meet today in Etoiboke, the organizers decided last night.

The 11-member Canadian delegation hosting the World Masters amateur track meet for athletes over 40, voted 6-5 to rescinding a previous ban on the 15 white athletes from the two white minority-race countries.

The federal government has said it will not pay a $20,000 grant towards the meet's expenses if athletes from pre-apartheid countries participate. But the meet organizers have already received $24,000 of the grant.

Immediately after the vote was announced, the five-member Yugoslavian team told The Star it is pulling out in protest because it doesn't want South Africans to compete. Members of several other national teams said in interviews they are considering dropping out.

The politically troubled meet was to begin at 9 a.m. today in Etoiboke's Centennial Stadium.

Last week, an aide to Health Minister March Lalonde announced that Ottawa "will not support apartheid morally or financially" and will cut off financial aid to any Canadian sports event that invites teams from South Africa.

Don Farquharson, president of the Canadian Masters Association and chairman of the meet organizing committee, announced the decision to allow the South Africans and Rhodesians to compete after a closed meeting.

A spokesman for Lalonde said the government would cut off funds for any Canadian sports event that included teams from South Africa, because Canada "will not support apartheid."

Pain, 33, a lawyer from San Diego, Calif., was further about the ban. "I don't see the Canadian government has any right to do this."

Pain said the 13 Africans had entered as individuals, not as a sponsored team. Each paying his or her own $2,000 air fare and expenses.

said in an interview, "The federal government's decision at this late stage made the situation completely unfair to the competitors." About 1,400 athletes from 30 countries have been invited to the five-day meet. Farquharson said Ottawa knew the South Africans were coming but didn't make its policy clear last week. By that time the South Africans were already in the United States. But representatives from the two teams jubilantly welcomed the decision to let Ottawa. We're greatly relieved. I've been preparing for 22 years and this has to be the greatest moment of my life," Rhodesian Val Linn said in an interview. "It's big news that they divorced athletics from politics," said South African Dan Burger. "We didn't come all this way for nothing." The 13 paid their own way at a cost of about $3,000 each. The closed meeting was conducted in a conference room in the offices of Labatt's Breweries Ltd, on Resourses Bldg, while more than 100 athletes ate and drank beer upstairs at a reception given by Labatt's. They sang songs, joked and laughed until Farquharson came into 2.30 to announce the vote. The mood changed. The Yugoslavians were angry. "We are opposed to any state that has apartheid," Turk Nikola told the Star. "We will not compete." Sylvester Stein of England stood up to announce to all that he didn't like the vote. Boss greeted his statement.

Ottawa refuses grant
South African athletes barred from meet

Fifteen white South African athletes have been barred from an athletic meet in Robeckoe next week but one said today they hadn't been informed yet.

The athletes have been competing in White Plains, N.Y., this week.

The Canadian Track and Field Association decided Tuesday not to let the athletes compete in the World Masters' meet because of a threat that the federal government would withdraw $30,000 in grants.

Ottawa announced Friday that it would cut out its financial aid to any Canadian sports event that invites teams from South Africa, meet director Ken Twigg said today.

An aide to Health Minister Marc Lalonde said yesterday that Ottawa "will not support apartheid morally or financially."

NOT A TEAM

Twigg said in an interview that the national government is not barring the South Africans, but without government aid the meet could not be held.

"They told us the money would have to be returned if the South Africans took part," he said. "That's realy putting it to us." Twigg said that although the athletes are travelling as a group, they had issued the meet as individuals, not as a team.

Dr. Danie Burger, one of the athletes, said in a telephone interview from White Plains that they hadn't been informed of the ban.

"We were told before we left Tuesday that everything was fine," he said, adding that Toronto was the main objective of the group.

COME ANYWAY

Burger said that despite being unable to compete, the athletes would likely come to Toronto anyway.

"We paid for this out of our own pockets. It was an individual effort, we aren't sponsored by anyone as a team," he said.

Twigg said it was a difficult situation because of the last-minute government policy change.

He said a telegram from the track and field association was sent to South Africa Tuesday which it hoped would reach the delegation before it left.

It didn't, Burger said.

Twigg said in that case, the World Masters' director in South Africa should have contacted them.

He said last night the government's decision amounts to "interference in amateur sport. That's something the government promised it wouldn't do when it first began a funding amateur sport about 15 years ago."

Banana republic

The Canadian government's attitude and actions over the amateur track and field meet that started yesterday in Etobicoke, involving 1,400 athletes from 30 countries, reconfirms the suspicion that Trudeau is turning Canada into a left-wing banana republic.

Consider the basic facts: The World Masters meet, consisting of track and field athletes over 40 years old — a sort of Geritol Olympics — would encourage physical fitness. Participants all paid their own way over, while the federal government agreed to contribute $32,000 — of which $24,000 has already been paid.

Then the organizers were informed by Ottawa (Marc Lalonde's department, which figures that if South African or Rhodesian athletes were allowed to compete — no dough. In fact give back the $24,000. 1. It's crummy (but typical); to do business by retroactive decisions; 2) Why in God's name deliberately insert politics into sport?

Bravo for those athletes who threatened to boycott the meet unless all could compete! They understand principle better than politicians. They also gave backbone to the organizers to tell Ottawa its talk. Trudeau gets flak for coming up to Peking or Moscow he likes to say that diplomatic recognition doesn't imply moral approval. But when it comes to South Africa it does. The double standard reigns. In truth, despite the pronouncements towards apartheid, the indignities and restrictions of human rights perpetrated by the Soviets and Chinese are infinitely more oppressive than anything South Africa does.

Trudeau's government has prevented Taiwanese athletes from competing in Canada, out of deference to Peking. Rhodesian passport-holders cannot enter the country.

Watch for boycotts and incidents at next year's Olympics against Israelis, Chileans, etc. on political grounds. Canada is now an advocate of that behavior.

Trudeau feels as he has written that there's no limit the amount of abuse people will take, once they're ditioned to subservience. We haven't the stomach of tugsive people, who at least resist. We are officially left-wing, anti-people, government.

Athletes were ready to sue

BY BOB MITCHELL

Staff Writer

The Canadian Masters Association came within a whisker of being sued by South African masters, according to CMA president Don Farquharson.

At an emergency meeting Monday night, the CMA decided to ignore the federal government's ban on the athletes and allowed them to compete at the World Masters track meet, which officially begins today at 3 p.m. at Etobicoke's Centennial Stadium. The government ban was due to South Africa's apartheid racial policy.

Had the CMA not defended the government, Farquharson says the South Africans would have taken legal action to sue.

"They had a legal contract with the CMA and the CMA accepted their entrance fee and told them to come," said Masters' legal advisor Don Champagne. "Had the CMA decided to abide with the government's decision, they would have broken a legal contract. And the South Africans probably would have won their case."

Champagne's and Farquharson's reactions were not just precautionary, because prior to Monday's 11th hour decision, members of the South African contingent indicated they would take some action if they were prevented from competing.

A member, who wished to remain anonymous, said they were led to believe they could compete. They didn't officially learn they couldn't compete until they arrived in Toronto Monday at noon. Officials blamed the mix-up on communications foul-up.

"At no time did the issue of South African athletes emerge into the discussion," he anyway you look at it, somebody was on our backs, either the government or the South Africans.

The CMA received a letter from the South African athletics branch of the federation, government Aug 1 stating they would have to return the $32,000 grant given to them, if South Africans were allowed to compete.
Oldtimers rewrite track record

10 records established in Masters' contests as politics shelved

By BOB KOEP

Almost every veteran athlete attending the Masters Track and Field championships at picturesque Centennial Stadium knows the name of the little village pictured on the back of the Canadian $2 bill. It is Melbourne, Que., home of 61-year-old last flume.

A retired teacher, Hume took his third gold medal of the world meet with a world-record-breaking triple jump, and a gold medal of the 10.46 metres, Saturday.

An accomplished high jumper in his youth and a track coach for many years, the 6-foot, 5½-inch Quebecer also proved he hasn't lost much of his skill when he bettered his division's Canadian mark with a leap of 1.45 metres in the high jump.

Earlier he won his first gold in the pole vault by clearing 2.60 metres equalling the existing open mark. He also had a bronze in the javelin throw.

Highpoint of Saturday's proceedings, however, was the 200-metre dash for athletes over 80, featuring the inestimable Tartan Flash, Duncan MacLean, a 90-year-old Scot.

MacLean was second to a relative youngster, 81-year-old Fritz Schreiber of Sweden.

"Schreiber was the faster man," MacLean said. "Age has nothing to do with it."

Not even prepressing or out of breath minutes after the race, MacLean was ready to go again.

"I'll race him again right now. Maybe I could beat him two out of three," he said.

Schreiber's time was 44.7 seconds, MacLean came home in 49.2 while Charlie Speedie, 87, of England took the bronze in 53.3.

Three more world records fell Saturday when Reg Barlow, 71, of Melbourne, Australia, clocked a time of 27 minutes, 56.4 seconds in the 10,000 metres, while Jim Fraser, 61, of Scotland bettered the hammer throw world mark with a heave of 44.10 metres. Norm Bryant, 65, set a world mark of 4:35.1 in the 1.500 metres, for his third gold medal.

Australian Albie Thomas, once a world record holder over two miles, also demonstrated he hasn't lost much of his speed by capturing the over-40 mile mile (1,500 metres) with a sub-6:45:10 performance.

Thomas' time was 6:45:10, but his fastest this year, but a time many a runner in his prime would fail to match.

In the track events, Canada was completely shut out as his races were dominated by U.S., Australian and English runners. Saturday the U.S. took another 15 gold medals with England getting five and Australia eight. However, Canadians Al Oakley, 42, a former Olympian, and Mac Queen, 73, of Toronto, took two golds in the 25 km and 3 km walk respectively.

Art Taylor, 45, of Waterloo, 10, topped the 10,000 metres cross-country race in 36:42. Five more went to Canada earlier last week, all in field events.

THE TARTAN FLASH: Duncan MacLean (1), a spry 90-year-old Scot, readily admitted that faster man, Fritz Schreiber, 81, of Sweden, won 200-metre dash for athletes over 80 in Masters track and field championships. Saturday, MacLean ready to go again minutes later.

"Maybe I could beat him two out three," he said.

Record for 50-year-old

By BOB KOEP

For Bill Fitzgerald running 800 metres means total involvement.

At the age of 50, the Los Angeles aeroplane analyst reached the height of his track career last winter when he broke a world record for athletes 50 and over of 2 minutes, 11 seconds, at the World Masters Track and Field Championships at Ebbets Field, Centennial Stadium.

A non-smoker, Fitzgerald only took up running in earnest eight years ago and gradually built up his program to a point where he covers at least eight miles a day, every day.

By doing as many as 60 miles a week during the winter Fitzgerald gets himself into shape for the main season when he cuts down to 20 miles a week for the sake of fitness and effectiveness and steps up his middle distance running.

Results of his diligent training were clearly evident last night in the finish sprint where he broke away from the pack and charged down the final stretch.

But hold on there.

If healthy living and massive training mean the difference between winning and losing, what about the performance of Hans Schneider, a 61-year-old competitor from Cologne, West Germany? Schneider is a heavy smoker, takes only two hours a week and still wins almost every event in his group.

Yesterday, Schneider broke the Canadian open record in the long jump and the javelin throw to win two gold medals and two silver so far in the meet.

During competition in the pentathlon event, Schneider had a long jump of 4.85 metres and a javelin throw of 29.74, both records, and added a 200-metre time of 39.05, a discrimination of 25.58 metres in the discus to pile up 1,407 points, 300 more than the runner-up.

The Masters meet concludes tonight with field events and long distance races. A special race for athletes over 50 years was scheduled for 2 p.m.

ATHLETES READY TO SUE

ment as a partner in the case.

Parharbora says the CMA's decision was not made on the basis of feasibility of legal action being taken against them.

"Because of the government's meanness in forwarding their official stand, we thought it was unfair to the South Africans to tell them there is no hope of competing, seeing how they had spent their own money to get here.

We will seek the middle and Parharbora hasn't heard from the government since the CMA's meeting and says two-thirds of the money has already been spent on administration costs and the only thing left to grow here would be a t-shirt.

As a result of the CMA's decision to allow the South Africans to compete, the Yugoslav team has withdrawn from the events. Organizers hope the Yugoslavs can be persuaded to return.

Another said he not only wrote a cover letter with his entry but submitted a letter saying if there were any problems, but also pointed out to him he could compete.

It's not known whether the South Africans intended to include the government in their suit, but Champagne Press Secretary said if necessary he would advise them to include the govern-
Featured 200-metre race won by Fritz Schreiber

BY LEE FAIRBANKS

Lee Fairbanks, president of the Canadian Masters International Track Team led competitors and spectators on a victory lap around the Es- bickie Centennial Stadium track Saturday to signify the end of the First World Masters track and field meet. It was a fitting end to a meet at which athletes from around the world proved that there is no reason to stop competing in sports at 40.

Duncan MacLean, 39, a native of Scotland, still hasn’t stopped. He finished second to a 10-year-old Swede Fritz Schreiber in these featured 200-metre race with England’s Charlie Speedelier’s time was 44.7 seconds, while MacLean may have set a world record for people over 50 with his 4.92 clocking.

Known as The Tartan Fox, MacLean spends a lot of time attending track meets around the world. He got his nickname in part because he drinks Tartan beer back home in London, where he lives.

“I could win one now,” he said, after catching his breath following the race. Despite his age, he still has a keen mind.

“A word to the wise. I’ve been giving a lot of interviews here in Toronto, and the reporters have been dipping me a little money to help with expenses. If you’d like to continue the tradition, it’s fine with me.”

Norm Bright, 66, from Seattle, is another veteran who spends his time at meets. He’s happy to be old enough not to work.

“I don’t talk to me about that. That’s an old word. I’ve done all the work, and I’m not gonna do. I’m having fun now.”

Bright set a Canadian 1A world record with a time of 16.39 in the 1,500-metres, his third gold medal of the meet. He won sprints in the other two events he entered. His favorite event is the 5,000-metres, which he won on Friday.

“I only get one chance a year to run a 1,500 because where are you running to get the 1,500 to practice? So the other days I was practicing on the water jump, I took a walk three times. Sorry, we’re getting old, and I said that’s fine, it cooks my meat.”

“I don’t jump over the steeplechase, you know. It’s too dangerous. I put my hands on and walk over. That has its dangers too, though, you might clip someone as you swing your legs over. In fact, I did that to someone Friday. He landed on the side of the track. I felt bad, but what can you do?”

Bright is one of the best known and liked competitors at masters meets, because of his bubbling banter and stop chatter.

Susie Buchanan lifts and embraces teammate Yoshida O’Dell after the 5,000-metres. Buchanan won the event.

Kingston’s Roy Rowan, a member of the country’s Commonwealth Games team in 1962, completed his triple sweep, winning the class 1A 5,000-metres in 14:33.6, a Canadian Open record for the class. He had won the 10,000 metres, and cross-country earlier in the week. Powdar left shortly after the race to catch a plane back to England.

Americans dominated the sprints, winning golds in 13 of the 11 100-metres and 200-metre events. Thorne Baker, 43, a silver medalist in the 1960 Olympics missed his chance for a double when he pulled the hamstring muscle during the stretch run of the class 1A 200-metre final. He was unbeaten in 100 and 200-metres this year.

With the competitors firing from the stands of training and competition which culminated at this meet, there was a rush of muscle pull in the sprints yesterday. None of them were serious, however, and the worst injury of the meet was a torn Achilles tendon.

Ed Whight, from Montreal, lowered his class 1A Canadian native record in the 1,500 metres to 4:05.3 with a fourth-place finish behind former world open record holder Alby Thomas of Australia, whose time was 3:58.9.

In the women’s 5,000-metres, an event still considered too strenuous for the Olympics, Susie Buchanan of the United States steadily moved further away from the pack to win the class OW (30-39) in a time of 18:44.4. Dorothy Blake and Yoshida O’Dell, both from the USA, staged a stretch duel to finish first and second respectively in the 1W class (40-49).

Max Gould, of Toronto, who set a world record in Class 2B (50-59), in the 5,000-metres walk, Wednesday, won the 25,000-metre walk, in his class with a time of 2 hrs. 15 min. and 22 sec.

Quebec’s Ian Hume, a recent graduate to the 5A class (60-69) set a world Masters record of 10.45 metres in the triple jump. Howard Papp, 43, a silver medalist at the 1974 Commonwealth Games, easily set a Canadian Open Masters mark of 53.22 metres in the hammer throw.

With the events over, and the victory lap run, most of the competitors headed downtown to a banquet in the Great Hall of the Four Seasons Sheraton Hotel. The Tartan Fox summed the general feeling for everyone, before he left: “I always find great admirers at track meets.”
Surprise In Dipsea—Winner Is Australian

BY DAVID EINSTEIN

The Australians who entered the 7th annual Dipsea Race at the last minute were unimpressive on the field of the runners who jammed Mill Valley for the start. At the finish, it was a different story.

Joe Patterson, a 41-year-old milkman from Queensland, Australia, broke the tape at Stinson Beach to win the 66th annual Dipsea Race yesterday.

Australian Captures The Dipsea

John Patterson, a 41-year-old Australian on the last stop of an American tour, won yesterday’s Dipsea Race by covering the 6.8-mile course from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach in 44 minutes, 48 seconds with a 15-minute handicap.

David had very high hopes.

World Masters data on the #25

The story of the race really began Saturday, when it Aussies arrived in the Bay Area to compete in the real marathon, a 30-mile race from Stinson Beach to San Francisco.

The Australians, led by Joe Patterson, were not expected to do well, but they surprised everyone by finishing in second place. Joe Patterson, who had been leading the race until the final stretch, was followed closely by his compatriot, George McRitchie, who finished third.

George McRitchie

The Australians’ victory was a significant one, as it marked the first time an Australian had won the Dipsea Race. It also marked the first time an Australian had won a marathon in the United States.

The Australians returned to Australia yesterday with their reputations enhanced, and with a newfound appreciation for the American spirit of competition.

Send your name, address, the meet you are interested in, your event, and your number. Prices are: 5x5 -- $1.00; 5x7 -- $1.75, and 8x10 -- $2.50. These are excellent photos and Rod worked real hard to get shots of everyone. Sorry we can't publish them all. Drop Rod a line and your order... The USMCT would like to publish results of your event provided it is of some interest beyond your local club. We will do this, however, only if you send the results in camera ready form and adaptable to the USMCT Newsletter format. Most results we get are unprintable and lai cut out incorrectly......... The Alex Pappas' now of St. Marcus, Kansas, report they are sponsoring meets with over 100 entries and had to build a track to run on. With enthusiasm like this the Masters will sprout everywhere.............Incidentally the scuttlebutt is that the Midwest Masters will seek to sponsor the AAI Masters 16k Nationals in '76. If your community is interested in sponsoring this event write our National Chairman, Bob Fine, 11 Park Place, N.Y.C. 10007 and express your interest. A formal bid must be presented at the AAI National Convention to be held 1st week in December in New Orleans. Remember our policy is to move the Nationals around the country. Remember it takes a lot more work to move on the Nationals than it does to bid for them. White Plains learned that the hard way. Their promises at the Convention in October far exceeded their performance in August, as this year's Masters with its largest entry ever -- over 600 -- was by far the poorest organized and run Nationals since the Meets inception. This was doubly unfortunate as we had many international guest athletes who destated better particularly the British and Australians who really know how to put on a track meet. Our affair -- except for the track -- paled in comparison to the meet presented by the Canadians in Toronto........

........Incidentally, congratulations and expressions of thanx are in order to Don Farquharson, 559 Jarvis Street, Toronto, Ontario, CANADA M4Y 2JI, who with his dedicated Committee worked for nearly 2 yrs. to organize the Toronto Meet... They established a standard the Swedes, and other sponsors will find hard to equal if not exceed. Drop a note of appreciation to Don which is small compensation for the hundreds of hours of volunteer work which went into the event.......... Regarding the South African flap the USMCT stands ready to guarantee the $32,000 grant of the Canadian government should it be necessary to make the reimbursement. Frankly we feel the government's position is extremely weak both morally and legally and doubt that a fund raising will be necessary. Also Don Farquharson reports that a preliminary accounting indicates they are not in the red. It will be sometime before we know just where we stand on this issue so stand by!........Now the next major junket of the USMCT will be in Great Britain in Aug.'76 following the Olympic Games...The specifics have not been worked out as yet...tentative plans, however, are to arrive in Great Britain in time for their British Vets Championships followed the next weekend by the Association of World Vets L.D.R. Marathon to be held in Coventry, England August 15. Then tour Northern England --do some fall running and then visit Scotland where the Northern Vets will put on a 10km Road Race in Glasgow. The trip will cover about 3 weeks. No cost estimate as yet. Costs, however, are directly related to the number going! Accordingly, if you are interested send a $50.00 deposit to us right away (Deposit form on Page )........Speaking of Tours: The USMCT will charter aircraft for SWEDEN in '77. Tentative plans are to have at least one West Coast and one East Coast departure with more, should the demand be great enough. Housing is very tight in Sweden in the summer, therefore, if you are planning to compete in the 2nd World Masters T&F Championships in Goteborg you may send a $50.00 per person deposit and thereby assure yourself of a seat and housing. We expect a minimum of 3000 entrants in '77. (Deposit form for Sweden on Page )....

......Hal Higdon informs us he will sponsor a full-fledged Masters T&F training camp next summer probably just prior to the Nationals. Hal recognizes that most Master athletes have had little, if any, training in technique particularly in the skill events....or are staggering by on the remnants of their college training. Accordingly he plans a full staff of qualified coaches to fill this much needed service. If interested, drop a line to Hal at:

World records fall to 'old timers'

By BILL GLAUCER
Staff Writer

The joy of competing in an athletic endeavor brought 612 participants from 12 countries to the AAU National Masters Track and Field Championships, held Friday through Sunday, at Loucks Field in White Plains.

The competitive spirit exhibited by the 30 to 50-year-old tracksters created a pleasant atmosphere. The most important aspects of the meet were not winning or posting out the opponent, but finishing a race and sportsmanship.

In this mood of good will, world masters records were broken while nearly every meet record went by the board.

"I love running and I really enjoy competing," said Albe Thomas of Australia, winner of the masters 44-year-old 1,500 and 5,000-meter events.

"RUNNING IN the Masters is more enjoyable than running in the Olympics," added Thomas, a three-time Olympian and former world record holder at two and three miles. "I'm having more fun competing now than I ever did before!"

Jack Greenwood of Kansas is another "old timer" who enjoys masters events. Greenwood was named the outstanding track competitor in the 45-49 division for his first place finishes in the 100, 400, and 400-meter hurdles, and the 110 and 440-yard hurdles.

The 65-year-old University of Kansas grad picked up two additional gold medals for being on the winning 400-meter relay and one mile relay teams.

"Running is my way of relaxing," said Greenwood. "Some people get home from work and unwind with a martini. I'll get home, put on my sweat suit and unwind by running a few miles."

"It makes me feel young," said Stephenie High School track coach Bill Krebs about competing in the Masters. The 48-year-old Krebs anchored the winning two-mile relay team for the Y Pioneer Track Club in the 40-49 category.

The masters competition is a good idea for old men," said the 46-year-old Peterson. "It helps you keep in shape for life."

Banana republic

The Canadian government’s attitude and actions over the amateur track and field meet that started yesterday in Etobicoke, involving 1400 athletes from 30 countries, reconfirms the suspicion that Trudeau is turning Canada into a leftwing banana republic.

Consider the basic facts: The World Masters meet, consisting of track and field athletes over 40 years old — a sort of Geritol Olympics — would encourage physical fitness. Participants all paid their own way over, while the federal government agreed to contribute $32,000 — of which $24,000 has already been paid.

Then the organizers were informed by Ottawa (Mare Lalonde’s department, which figures) that if South African or Rhodesian athletes were allowed to compete — no dough. In fact give back the $24,000. 1) It’s crummy (but typical); to do business by retroactive decision; 2) Why in God’s name deliberately insert politics into sport?

Bravo for those athletes who threatened to boycott the meet unless all could compete! They understand principle better than politicians. They also gave backbone to the organizers to tell Ottawa to jump in the lake.

When Trudeau gets flak for cozying up to Peking or Moscow he likes to say that diplomat recognition doesn’t imply moral approval. But when it comes to South Africa it does. The double standard reigns. In truth, despite the repugnance one feels towards apartheid, the indignities and violations of human rights perpetrated by the Soviets and Chinese are infinitely more oppressive than anything South Africa does.

Trudeau’s government has prevented Taiwan athletes from competing in Canada, out of deference to Peking. Rhodesian passport-holders cannot enter the country.

Watch for boycotts and incidents at next year’s Olympics against Israelis, Chileans, etc. on political grounds. Canada is now an advocate of such behavior.

Trudeau feels (as he has written) that there’s no limit to the amount of abuse people will take, once they’re conditioned to subservience. We haven’t the stomach of Portuguese people, who at least resist. We are, officially, now a leftwing, anti-people, government.
